On the 23rd of November we organized a meeting with people working at the local municipalities and tourist organizations to elaborate more on the app and its possibilities for the future. The meeting started with an explanation of the project, its objectives and its results. We explained which countries participated and how we have set up the project in the different countries. Next followed a short demonstration of the app and the route that it showed. The participants were able to give feedback. Overall they thought the route was good, however they mentioned that the route was far from the city centre and train stations, making it a bit less tourist-friendly. Their alternative was to find a route that was closer to Scheveningen, so that it is easier for tourists to get there with public transport. The meeting lasted for about an hour and a half and most of the participants were excited about the app. They were not sure whether they would incorporate the app in their day to day business yet, but they definitely thought it was promising.
